

THE PURBECK SOCIETY was set up in 1855 as a semi-learned society for the study of local matters in the fields of history, natural history, local industries, architecture and associated subjects in the Isle of Purbeck. The Society, now as the civic society for the area, as well as campaigning on its own account supports other such appropriate organisations concerned with the preservation of Purbeck's heritage.

The Society is affiliated to the Dorset Branch of the Campaign to Protect Rural England (CPRE) and as such it seeks to forward the aims of the CPRE. These are broadly to preserve the countryside as it develops, from abuse or disfigurement or any injuries to its amenities and, with this in view, to seek the co-operation of local authorities, landowners and others concerned.

Membership of the Society is open to anyone interested in furthering the Society's aims and objects; currently the Society has over 350 members. The Society is managed by a Committee elected at the Annual General Meeting held in the spring. There is a Sub-Committee set up to deal with conservation matters and planning issues and spearheads the Society's campaigns against perceived threats arising from unsympathetic development proposals affecting Purbeck's heritage and the unique environment of our towns, villages, countryside and coastline. The Society is a consultee on all planning applications in the whole Purbeck District area, although its main concerns focus on the historic Isle of Purbeck, i.e. that area south of the River Frome. It does, however, keep an eye on development proposals in Wareham due to their possible impact on the Isle of Purbeck.

During the winter, the Society organises monthly lectures and in the summer season, arranges field trips to historic sites and places of heritage interest as well as those that illustrate the special quality of our environment. We hope thereby to encourage a greater interest and awareness amongst our members and, that in turn, they will actively support the Society's efforts to prevent the despoliation of the heritage passed down to us.

The Society has its own Library which, in addition to its archive, has over 100 books and publications, mainly about Dorset and the Purbeck Area. Access to this is available to members on prior application to the Secretary.
